Wooing The Savers

The lengths to which some New York City savings banks are going to attract customers verges on the ridiculous. Some banks have been advertising that they will compound interest daily instead of quarterly. A few now are saying they will compound interest "continuously" or "every second." Wow! At a bank paying 5 per cent on a regular savings account, "continuous" compounding returns $512.71 in annual interest on a $10,000 account. How much does a customer get from "continuous" compounding over daily compounding? Four cents a year.—Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier

A Frightening First

Like butter melting under the hot sun, the scientific and technological superiority of the U.S. is dwindling before the concerted drive of the Soviet Union to excel in scientific progress. A short time ago the Soviets announced completion of the world's first commercial-sized, fast breeder power reactor.

They have reached this goal some 14 years ahead of the target date set for commercial operation of such plans in the U.S. and eight years before President Nixon's goal of having a full-size demonstration plan in operation in 1980.

It is generally recognized now that the fast breeder reactor will be the primary energy source of the future. Yet it is a good bet that every step of the way in our own effort to implement this source of energy will be accomplished by protests and opposition in this country from militant environmentalists and antitechnologists.

The Russians saw the handwriting on the wall. They know a nation's security, standard of living and general well-being are tied directly to energy. The U.S. is living proof of this truth. — Rocky Mount (N.C.) Telegram

Fiscal Facts

As you expected, the "debt limit" didn't limit federal debt. Debt rose, so the limit has been voted up to 450 billion dollars.

With the Republican President calling for more horrible deficit spending and Democratic Congress ready to spend even more, debt will quickly rise again. There will be a new demand for raising the debt limit next year.

Remember, it's your money; it's your debt; interest alone is costing more than 21 billion dollars a year. Solution? Cut spending and balance the budget. - Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

'Ideabook' Criticized

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Council on Human Relations has published an "Ideabook" for school officials.

The council was criticized for an earlier publication, a "Student Rights Handbook."

The newest publication, which contains 12 rules or suggestions, suggests that all segments of the community be involved in a study of the schools and that the schools, in turn, study the community.

It suggests that a student advisory committee meet with the school board "at all times" to give student opinion on matters that involve them; that teachers also participate in the determination of policy; that periodic training interpersonal relations should be required of school personnel and board members, and that textbooks should recognize that America is a multiracial nation.

The council's booklet on student rights was published last October and prompted the Arkansas Education Association to compile its own publication, which criticized the council's handbook.

Grants for University

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grants totaling $26,010 to help 15 college students conduct science research at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville this summer were awarded by the National Science Foundation.

The office of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said $16,410 would go to the Department of Chemistry at UA and that the other $9,600 would go to the Department of Electrial Engineering.

How to Join Circus

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — So you want to run away and join the circus. And you're thinking of starting at the top.

Here's how.

—Don't show circus owner Irving Feld every trick you ever learned. Stick to the three or four best ones, perhaps starting off with the piece de resistance to get his attention.

—If you're going to one of the circus schools, let him know about the act you hope to perfect by the time you graduate. He might take an option now.

—Tell him you're not interested in that old center ring concept. Be enthusiastic about three rings. Say you understand that the best act sometimes plays Ring 1 or Ring 3.

—A high wire act or lions or tigers? Let it run. Otherwise, keep it under five minutes.

—Ask for a lot of money if you think he likes you.

"Anyone I've ever seriously wanted, I got," said Feld. He's the owner of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, the biggest in the world.

He once seriously wanted Gunther-Gebel-Williams. It took a $2 million deal to break up the Circus Williams and get its star and his tigers.

Feld, his 23-year-old son, Kenneth, and an agent in Europe look at every act that is hired.

He sees 50 European circuses every year, visits eight or nine circus schools and watches his own production maybe 100 times.

Never gets tired of clowns and trapezes, sawdust and horses, etc., he says.

"You can be away for a week and then see new things happening when you watch the performance again," says Feld, a short man of 53 with thick glasses.

In defending the three-ring concept, he says he's perhaps the only person who can be sitting in front of Ring 1 and missing the action in the others.

Feld hires 20 per cent of his new talent straight from the big circus schools of Europe, the rest from existing acts. The recruitment really isn't difficult.

"It's like in old vaudeville. Once you played the Palace you were pretty well set. Now you are in if you've played Ringling Brothers," says Feld.

Feld has been instrumental in cutting down the average age, from 46 when he started hiring in 1969 to 23 now. "When I came here half the clowns were over 70," he says.

Feld, whose lifelong ambition was to own the circus, has learned a few things too, since his first pitch as a snake-oil salesman at age 13.

Another Jet Hijacked Over Utah

By GARRY J. MOES
Associated Press Writer

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A manhunt focused on this central Utah city today for a young hijacker who leaped from a United Air Lines 727 jetliner Friday night with $500,000 ransom after forcing a zigzag flight across the West.

Aerial flares lighted early morning skies over nearby Utah Lake as hundreds of lawmen started a search for the armed man.

This was the seventh time in just under five months that parachutes and ransom figured in airline piracy.

The nine-hour odyssey began over the Rocky Mountains almost 30 minutes after the plane left Denver at 2:36 p.m. MST when a mustachioed passenger wearing mirrored sunglasses, a pink shirt and a blue pinstripe suit ordered the Los Angeles-bound plane diverted to San Francisco.

Mrs. Dick McLennan of Denver, who sat next to the hijacker, said she saw no weapon but did see the man pass notes to the captain.

A CBS newsman on the plane, Jim Kilpatrick, said, "The notes that were passed back and forth were all prewritten."

Sandy Wilkinson, a 25-year-old off-duty UAL stewardess on the flight, said she did not see any weapons either but was told the hijacker had a hand grenade and pistol.

One passenger said the hijacker pulled a pistol.

The pilot said the hijacker told him he had "two hand guns, plastic explosives and hand grenades," but he saw only a pistol.

He said the hijacking was "a very well executed plan."

All but three of the 85 passengers had boarded in Denver, where airline officials said the only security precaution was a check of passengers against a "profile" of hijacker characteristics. The plane was Flight 855, originating in Newark, N.J.

For three hours the plane sat at the far end of Runway 19-Left, about a mile from main terminal at San Francisco International Airport, while the airline provided what the hijacker had demanded—four parachutes, fuel for 4,000 miles of flight and $500,000. The money in two suitcases was placed on a ramp about 100 feet from the plane and picked up shortly after 7 p.m. PST.

The passengers and one stewardess then were allowed to leave the plane and it took off at 7:41 PST, headed east.

The Air Force said during the evening that F106 Delta Daggers at Hamilton Air Force Base had been alerted, but it refused to confirm they had been sent to follow the airliner.

After leaving San Francisco, the pilot was ordered to fly over southern Nevada.

King Ranch Guilty

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The King Ranch pleaded guilty in U. S. District Court today on a charge of shielding illegal Mexican aliens.

U. S. Dist. Court Judge Reynaldo Garza assessed the maximum fine for a corporation at $2,000. He ordered $500 paid within 30 days and suspended the remainder of the fine for two years on the condition that the ranch does not violate immigration laws.

La Voyger Durham, a King Ranch foreman, had been indicted by a federal grand jury here on a charge of shielding illegal aliens.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Raul Gonzalez filed a criminal information against the King Ranch, Inc., of Kingsville, charging the corporation with shielding aliens. The indictment against Durham was dropped today at the request of Gonzalez.

Gonzalez told Garza in court that six U. S. Border Patrol agents slipped into the Norias Division of the King Ranch at 3:45 a.m. Feb. 10, searching for illegal aliens.

The agents, he said, walked five miles from U.S. 77 to a camp where they found 24 aliens sleeping at 5:30 a.m.

Gonzalez added that about 6 a.m., other agents entered the ranch through a main gate. They said they saw Durham run from ranch headquarters, partially dressed. He was sounding a car horn and shouting in Spanish, "The law officers are coming," Gonzalez said.

Gonzalez related that on four other occasions agents went to the ranch during morning hours but were unable to find aliens at the camp. He said they found evidence that the aliens had been there because the bunks were still warm, and partially eaten food was found. He said officers theorized that the aliens had been warned in some manner that the officers were approaching.

Joe Walsh represented the ranch. He said there are no more illegal aliens working there and said the corporation will not have any more.

Gonzalez said the 24 aliens have been deported.

Western States in Grip of a Drought

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A winter drought is drying the air and ground in the Southwest, browning crops and rangelands and posing serious fire threats to forests and brush land.

Since a heavy rain in late December, only a barely measureable amount of rain has fallen on Southern California and Nevada and none in Arizona during the normal winter rainy season.

Only .13 inches of rain was recorded in Los Angeles in February and none in January or March. "By this time of year we should have had nine inches," said Joseph Vederman, the Weather Service's chief meteorologist for Southern California. "I think the average person would say we're in a drought."

Winter storms that normally hit Southern California have been diverted into Northern California, Oregon and Washington, he said.

In the high mountains, where thick snowpacks are needed to replenish the rivers and reservoirs in the spring, snowfall is below normal. Some irrigation districts have already cut back water deliveries.

Nevada Agriculture Director Thomas W. Ballow said the brushland has suffered from the dryness but it is not yet a drought. He said if rain does not come soon farmers will have to supply other feed to cattle and sheep, driving up the cost of meat.

"It all adds up to a total crop failure for our dry land grain," said Bob Howie, agriculture commissioner of California's Riverside County. "Possibily 20 per cent of the barley, wheat and oats was saved through irrigation, but all the money was spent on water."

Howie said the irrigation had substantially drained the county's water reserves. Grain crops and pasture grass also were reported destroyed in San Benito, Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties in California.

In California's Central Valley, the driest March since record keeping began in 1888 was made worse by a two-day freeze late in the month, severely damaging raisin grapes, plums, peaches, nectarines, walnuts and almonds. Wine grapes in the Napa Valley north of San Francisco also were hard hit by the freeze.

The U.S. Forest Service imposed early restrictions on campfires and smoking on half of its land in Arizona. A hundred fire fighters and 25 supporting tankers were sent from California to aid in fire prevention and suppression.

Banky Curtis, a wildlife biologist with the California Game and Fish Commission, said, "It's having a severe effect on wild game. I have no doubt that some animals are dying, but the most severe effect is on population growth."

George Taylor, battalion chief with the Los Angeles County Fire Department, said, "There's little moisture left in the vegetation and grass. The fire danger is going to come sooner this year and last longer. The fire season usually doesn't start until July, but we're already starting to experience small fires."

Rules Rights Abdicated

BOSTON (AP) — A person born to Jewish parents who joins the "Hebrew-Christians" movement abdicates "his rights as a member of the Jewish faith," the Rabbinical Court of Justice of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts says.

However, the court ruled Tuesday that such a person "may not at any time be exempt from responsibilities which membership in the Jewish faith imposes upon him by Divine Revelation clearly defined in the written and oral law."

U.S. Sends More Planes to Indochina

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist command's offensive slowed in some sectors of South Vietnam today, but gathered steam in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, where rocket, mortar and small ground assaults nearly doubled.

The United States, meanwhile, rushed more planes and ships to Indochina to join a bombing campaign against military targets in North Vietnam.

Most of the Communist ground attacks were aimed at regional and local force militia outposts which form a defensive perimeter around villages and hamlets.

Field sources said initial reports indicated that casualties were not high, but that many troops were "missing." This indicated that many of the militiamen may have fled, been abducted or willingly accompanied the enemy.

To the north of Saigon, government defenders reportedly were still holding at the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles above the capital on Highway 13.

A brigade of some 2,500 South Vietnamese paratroopers, who form the elite guard for the presidential palace in Saigon, moved by truck into Lai Khe, 25 miles north of Saigon, and started advancing on foot toward An Loc.

The redeployment of the brigade to relieve the hard-pressed government forces along Highway 13 depleted Saigon of its reserve forces. Two other brigades of paratroopers from the stretegic reserves are fighting in the central highlands.

Maj. Tran Ai Quoc, district chief of Chon Thanh district town, 15 miles south of An Loc, said: "We are under heavy enemy pressure and we are abandoning some of our outposts to strengthen our position. Right outside here, enemy are all along Route 13 to An Loc."

Officials said the deployment of more U.S. planes and ships to Indochina was aimed at forcing Hanoi to halt its offensive and negotiate peace.

The dispatch of two U.S. Marine F4 Phantom fighter squadrons to Da Nang air base turned back the clock. The 36 supersonic jets are from the 1st Marine Air Wing, which withdrew from South Vietnam in May 1971 as part of President Nixon's disengagement of American forces.

Will Watch Spending

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An Arkansas member of Common Cause, the national citizens lobby group, says that the group will watch campaign spending in congressional and senatorial races in Arkansas this year.

The member, John Elrod, said yesterday that it would not take "too much manpower" to keep tabs on spending.

Housing Market Looks Better for Everyone

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Seldom have things looked better in the new housing marke—for buyer, seller, lender. That at least is the way each of these groups views the situation.

A high ratio—49 per cent—of respondents in the laoest consumer survey by the University of Michigan feel it is a good time to buy, and builder grouls look forward to a record number of starts.

Lenders join in the enthusiasm. While their rates, in the 7 to 8 per cent bracket, are relatively high, they aren't being stingy with other terms. They have the money and they want to put it to work.

In this they have little choice because the funds they sign away at the loan desk are replenished immediately at the teller's cage. That savings rate is still around 8 per cent, highest since World War II.

So happy are some lenders that they tolerate no gloom. If interest rates begin to climb, they say, it won't stop buyers in their tracks. No siree. It will spur laggard buyers to action to avoid even higher rates.

Evidence of the good times is illustrated by the subject matter of promotional literature from the savings and loan associations, which are the biggest home mortgage lenders.

—Some are offering 95 per cent mortgages for amounts up to $30,000. When was it, two or three years ago, that a good credit risk might have to put up 30 per cent and pay a bonus in points also?

—Women are being treated more as equals of men in obtaining loans. Discrimination? Lenders didn't think so, but the women's lib people have made bigger scenes about lesser matters.

—The elderly now are more likely to obtain a home mortgage without undergoing the embarrassment of asking the children to cosign. The old rule was that if you were over 40, the sum of your age plus the length of the mortgage couldn't exceed 65.

Is the euphoria justified? For the immediate future it seems so. Housing starts in February set a record of 2.68 million, aided perhaps by a relatively mild winter in some parts of the country.

Soybeans Eager Eaters

Soybeans are "eager eaters" of soil minerals. They "clean-up" behind fertilized crops in a way similar to hogs feeding behind steers on corn. They have "silent partners"—nodule bacteria—that help them take their nitrogen needs from the air.

However, over a period of years, they can gradually deplete the soil mineral supply. They remove large quantities of phosphate and potash.

For example, says Calvin Caldwell, county Extension agent, crops averaging 30 bushels per acre remove about the equivalent of 650 pounds of 0-20-30 fertilizer. When removal reaches the point that phosphate or potash becomes deficient, yields are short. And when the lime supply gets low, the going gets rough on nodule bacteria. They can't do their best job of nitrogen fixing when the soil becomes strongly acid.

So look ahead for the next few weeks and consider fertility needs of your soybeans. Except for earliest plantings, you still have time to get a soil test. If you have soil tests that are not over 3 years old, the recommendations are still good. Pay special attention to potash and lime needs.

On strongly acid soils, lime can increase bean yield as much as 10 bushels per acre. Where potassium tests very low, potash fertilizer can increase yield 10 to 12 bushels per acre. Phosphate fertilizer can mean an extra 2 to 6 bushels where available soil phosphorus is very low.

In a nutshell, Mr. Caldwell says, soil fertility is the foundation for bumper yields of soybeans. Don't let your profits be shortchanged this year by a weak link in your soil fertility program.

Good Idea Can Succeed in a Hostile Society

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a good idea born into a hostile or indifferent society succeed?

Since environments change, the rejected ideas of yesterday often are welcomed today. Any fashion designer or marketing man can attest to it.

To illustrate, in the late 1950s Ford Motor Co. sought to interest the public in safety, but by most measures the attempt failed.

Now safety is "in." Every one of the big automakers is attempting to produce a safer car, although with considerable prompting from federal officials.

Another example: Early in the boom that followed World War II and which continues today people bought what they had long postponed buying. Included were foods and drinks that weren't available during the war and which they couldn't afford before it.

The results were measured on more than scales. Whereas malnutrition was a common health problem that turned up in insurance company files before the war, obesity replaced it after the war.

This was still before this battle of the bulge made millions of Americans so calorie and nutrition conscious. To put vitamin contents on packages would have been disdained as too medicinal; and the calories count as just malicious.

Now the Food and Drug Administration intends to see that just such information is included on packaged food labels, and quite likely the proposal will be welcomed in this calorie conscious, vitamin minded age.

The FDA chose five supermarket chains to test various labels containing such information and soon found itself in the words of a spokesman "bombarded" with requests from other retailers to get in on the action.

Money for Family Farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture is releasing $38 million in new operating loan funds nationwide to help family farmers in the planting of this year's crops. Arkansas' share of the funds will total about $1 million, officials said.

Will Close 160 Year Old School

LEWISBURG, W. Va. (AP) — The 160-year-old Greenbrier Military School has announced it will close at the end of this school term.

"We can no longer operate on tuition alone, and without an endowment expenses far exceed the income," Col. W. A. Rawl, the school's treasurer, said.

The school will graduate 34 seniors May 25. The student body of 145 is down from a high of 340.

Enrollment has declined steadily for the past three years, he said. "We had hoped to build it back up, but it just couldn't be done. This is an age of permissiveness. Parents let their boys do just about what they please. Military schools aren't as popular as they were some years ago."

Animal Rabies on Upswing in 1971

Animal rabies in Arkansas for the year 1971 was on the upswing. There was a total of 139 cases of animal rabies reported in Arkansas during the past calendar year. The increase in the number of reported positive cases was just short of 100 percent of the previous year. Wildlife rabies was the area of greatest increase and concern.

The animals most often reported as positive for rabies is skunk, cattle, fox, cat, bat, dog, bobcat, goat, hog, horse and raccoon. It is reasonable to assume that many cases of animal rabies remained undiagnosed and unreported in many areas of the state. This means that the rabies problem could be more serious than the statistics might indicate.

Since Arkansas does have a continuous rabies problem, all animal bites to humans must receive immediate, careful medical attention and proper management of the offending animal.

The division of Veterinary Public Health, Arkansas State Department of Health, Little Rock, Arkansas will provide information and consultation on animal bite problems.

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Like everyone else in the Western world, French citizen Michel Goma is eager to learn about things Chinese. But is couturier Goma looking East for fashion inspiration? "How do you say 'no' in Chinese?" asks the designer for the famous fashion house of Jean Patou.

Despite the fact that an enterprising American firm is doing a sell-out business in authentic Chinese workers' uniforms, contemporary Eastern garb is nothing more than a bamboo straw in the wind, M. Goma believes. "The young can wear the workers' costume," he said, "and it's fun but only a fad."

Adult Western women won't accept a uniform. They had a taste of it several seasons ago, Goma noted, with coats and dresses laden with epaulets, braid and rows of buttons set in military fashion.

The French designer came here to introduce his pret-a-porter collection for spring-summer and he sees the total rejection of the uniform look in terms of colors brightened to their fullest, whirling skirts and soft young silhouettes. His accessories are blatant whimsies —bracelets and necklaces looking like giant plastic rick-rack and stop-and-go jewelry resembling traffic lights.

For the fashion world, the real China question, he feels, is how long it will take Chinese women to abandon their look-alike garb. "They will do it," he predicted, "because they are women first, and Chinese second."

The Frenchman, whose fashion house produces Joy, the world's costliest perfume, now envisions a new Eastern market for fragrances and cosmetics developing within the next decade. Today, toiletry counters in China dispense mostly soap and shampoo.

Goma observed that American women are alert to fashion trends but less at ease about fashion than French women. The French women, he says, know instinctively how to accessorize.

"A designer," Goma said, "supplies a basic recipe and each woman should add her own spice."

He estimates that he produces 700 detailed sketches each season and only a comparatively few find their way to the fashion runway. But one that does, season after season, is sure to look like something Gigi might have worn.

Admittedly sentimental, M. Goma now lives where Colette wrote "Gigi," and he's happy to have the fictional charmer come to life again in every fashion collection he does.

Opening lead ♠ J

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The North-South bidding was very scientific. They certainly found out that no-trump wasn't a sound contract and that the hearts, for slam purposes, were wide open.

They also told West what to lead but West's spade holding looked so good to him he opened that suit.

This lead gave South an excellent chance to make a slam. All he had to do was finesse the right way for the queen of clubs; discard a heart on dummy's fourth club and claim the overtrick.

South had no interest in this. He was a strictly practical bridge player and while a sure 20 points was not to be despised it seemed silly indeed to risk game and rubber in an effort to collect that little extra nubbin.

South simply drew trumps; cashed the last top spade, led a heart and sat back.

It didn't matter to him what the opponents did. They could take two heart tricks. After that the man on lead would have to solve South's problems for him. A club lead would locate the queen. A heart or spade lead would allow a ruff and discard.

Incidentally, while this one time the scientific bidding might have proved expensive, we approve heartily of Souths three-spade bid. Give North the king of hearts instead of the king of spades and he would have been able to bid three no-trump, a contract which would have been unbeatable against any hand.

Our Own Worst Enemy

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—We all read your column and find it very helpful. I would appreciate your view on the following: We have three cats and three dogs that are in the house day and night. I would like to know if so many animals are injurious to one's health. My eyes trouble me and I think it is the animals. Some say it is not. What is your opinion?

Dear Reader—Healthy animals usually do not cause diseases in humans. There are some exceptions, like cat-scratch fever. The truth of the matter is that the most dangerous animal to man is another human being. Many of the infections and illnesses of man are transmittable only from one human being to another. The same is true in animals.

Now, it is also true that a person can be allergic to some animals which, unfortunately, can include the family pet. It also can include animal materials (hair or feathers, for example) used to make pillows, rugs, mattresses and other common household items. In your case, if what you mean by your eyes troubling you is an allergic-like problem, I think it would be wise to see an allergist and find out for certain if you are allergic to dogs and cats before you go through the heartache of giving up your pets.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What precautions do doctors take with their families? We never hear of any of them having cancer.

Dear Reader—Unfortunately, doctors and doctors' families have just about as many cancers as other people. I suspect that you are just not acquainted with that many physicians and their families. There are really no secrets about preventing cancer. Almost anything that a doctor and his family might do, you can do as well. One thing is regular checkups and I might add that doctors aren't always too good about this in reference to their own families. Many a doctor's wife has complained that she needed to make an appointment at the office to find out what her own medical status was.

Incidentally, doctors as a group are not the most healthy segment of our population. This isn't too surprising. A good many of them, like other middle-class Americans, eat entirely too much of the wrong foods. Their profession, as such does not permit them to enjoy a lot of physical activity and their daily practice involves long, hard hours, many of which are often stressful. Most doctors take a lot better care of their patients than they do of themselves, choosing to ignore the dictum, "Physician, heal thyself."

There are some exceptions and one of the most striking of these is the sharp decrease in smoking cigarettes that has occurred among doctors. You can go to many medical meetings today and in many sessions you will not see any doctors smoking at all. On the basis of available information, this probably decreases the incidence of lung cancer as well as eliminating a lot of other health hazards associated with smoking.

Johnson Calls Purchase Odd

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Foster Johnson of Little Rock, a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate position of John L. McClellan, said Thursday it seemed "rather odd" to him that the state Employment Security Division proposed to buy the building of a bank of which McClellan is a director.

The ESD Building Committee has recommended that the ESD buy the First National Bank building here for about $2.5 million.

"This is only one of the many places where he uses his power of his rich, affluent friends," Johnson said. "But the little taxpayer has to pay most of the costs. I wonder where the senior senator's public interests really area."

SEEKS MORE FROSH

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The University of Illinois will increase its quota for freshmen students in September 1972 and lower its admission requirements for some curricula.

Charles E. Warwick, director of admissions and records, said the new admissions requirements vary from college to college and are based on projections of how well the applicant may do as a U. of I. student.

Under the new standard, applicants will be admitted if their rank and test scores predict a 3.7 grade average.

Warwick said the quota for incoming freshmen was increased from 5,200 to 5,800 because the number of undergraduate students who returned to U. of I. in September 1971 was considerably below the anticipated total compared with previous enrollment trends.

Helen and Sue Bottel
The Generation Rap

She's Happy—or Is She?

Dear Rap:

Listening to people say how much freedom kids have today makes me sick. I'm almost 16 and I really dig my mother. This isn't a complaint. I just want everyone to know not all teens are out "on the loose."

Here are some of the things I can't do:

1. Go out with my girl friends.
2. Go out with boys.
3. Go to dances, parties, etc.
4. Talk on the telephone, unless my mother answers, then asks the girl her name, where she lives and what she wants. (Absolutely no boy calls.)
5. Bring kids to the house.
6. Go shopping, unless accompanied by my mother, sister or brother. (I like all of them lots, so that's no problem.)

Some of the things I AM allowed to do:

1. Go to work.
2. Go to school.
3. Go to church every Sunday, morning and evening.
4. Baby-sit for my married sister. (I have to, but I don't mind.)

My mother is from the old country and worries a lot about what people will say, and tmeptations and things like that. I love her—JOANNE

Dear Joanne:

Evidently you're happy, so I'll keep my big typewriter shut, though it's a terrible effort!—SUE

Dear Joanne:

My big typewriter has to say: "Dear Mother of Joanne—Please read between her lines and let your daughter become a normal American teenager! She won't disappoint you.—HELEN

DEAR RAP:

"Liar" asked how to cure himself of lying and exaggerating.

I had this habit of making a big deal out of everything, and it was losing me friends.

So every time I started to exaggerate, I'd write my version into a story, afterwards. Then I'd tell my friends and family the real truth, and let them read the "Fabrication." Pretty soon I was just writing those imagined things and not saying them. It got me some good grades in English.—DAN THE LIAR-LICKER

DEAR RAP:

You probably won't print this, but I have to say it.

I'm getting tired of hearing over and over about the terrible things that only the Caucasian race is supposed to have done. Whites are becoming so weighed down with guilty consciences that it's hard to function normally; thus we can't really "rap" with people of other races: we're either apologetic and silly or belligerent and on the offensive.

Really, we aren't the only ones guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment. For example, practically all slaves were furnished the slave traders by stronger black tribes who captured members of weaker tribes and sold their "brothers" into bondage. Very few white traders went inland and captured their own blacks. This is historical fact.

Which doesn't make whites any less at fault—but is DOES spread the cruelty to blacks also.

Whites are blamed for decimating the Indians, but they fought each other, too. Japanese concentration camps were horrible - so is war!

Isn't it time we stopped beating ourselves over past mistakes that we can never change? I'm tired of being made to feel responsible for what my ancestors did.

This is an open letter to those of minority races: please help me feel at ease with you. I can't, so long as I'm BLAMED UNFAIRLY.

Plans to Leave the Opera

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Music Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Rudolf Bing, 70, stepping out at the end of this season as general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, says he has thrown away his laugh machine. And, he adds that although he may be considered by some a tyrant, he actually has become mellow.

The famous Bing laugh machine, which he kept on his desk, was brought into operation to reply whenever a singer came into Sir Rudolf's office to ask for a raise. "It was a beautiful thing," Sir Rudolf said Tuesday in an interview. "But the battery has run down. It doesn't function any more. I must have thrown it away now."

This summer, the Met will negotiate with 14 unions representing its various employes, and Sir Rudolf said, "Raises are no laughing matter at the moment."

The last negotiations, three years ago, deadlocked and the house opened the week after Christmas instead of the middle of September. "It's really the main reason why, a year ago when it was suggested to me that I should stay another year or two, with regret I declined. I couldn't face it again.

"Also, after 22 years, I have nothing new to offer any more and I feel it is time for somebody else with younger and fresher ideas to come in."

As for the Bing years, which began with a triumphant opening night "Don Carlo" in 1950, what have been the highs and lows?

"It is not for me to say what I've achieved or not achieved," Sir Rudolf said.

Others commenting would place breaking black performers at the Met with Marian Anderson the first as a high and the departure of first rate conductors as a low.

"I have tried to bring the Met scenically, dramatically and stagewise into the 20th century," Sir Rudolf said.

"If I look back at directors and designers whom I've brought here over the years, I feel I've done some of that at least.

And we've certainly had over the past 20 years more of the great singers of the world and for longer periods than any other opera house in the world. That is not a matter of opinion, it is a fact."

Next year, Sir Rudolf has been given a distinguished professorship at the City University of New York, Brooklyn College. He'll be teaching graduates and undergraduates and a seminar on opera and performing arts management and that sort of area which I fancy myself knowing something about," he said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Contesting the Contest

"Decisions of the judges shall be final."

So said Rule Number Seven in the dot-counting contest sponsored by a neighborhood store. But when the judges rejected Myrtle's entry on grounds of neatness, she took the matter to court.

"Their announcement didn't say a word about neatness," she complained. "Not even the judges can make decisions that are outside the rules of the contest."

The court agreed with Myrtle, and her entry went on to victory.

Contests create a legal contract between the sponsoring company and the contestants. Accordingly, the basic principles of contract law will apply. Once the terms of the agreement are fixed, neither side can arbitrarily make changes.

However, if the contest judges keep within the limits of the original contract, they generally do have broad discretion.

In another case, contestants were supposed to deposit their entries in person at the showroom of a local automobile dealer. One contestant, disqualified by the judges for having mailed in his entry, insisted that this was too flimsy a reason for him to be barred.

But this time, the judges' ruling was upheld in court. The court said they had acted within the reasonable scope of their authority.

What about a rule against participation by company employees and their families? Again, the specific wording is crucial. In one case, the father of a company salesman submitted an entry in a football pool contest.

According to the rules, "no employee or member of his immediate family" could compete. Was the father a member of his son's "immediate family"?

In a court hearing, he pointed out that the son lived in his own home, on his own income, with his own wife and children. The court concluded there was enough separateness between the two men to leave the father eligible.

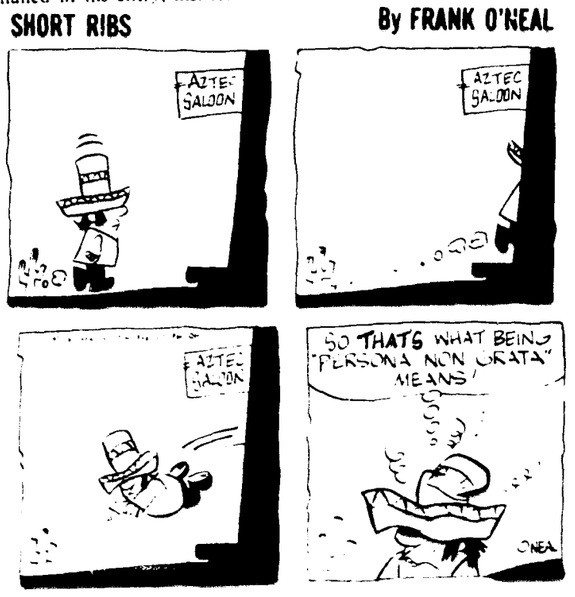

He took first prize.

Second Wears Hot Pants

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Imagine the inspiration if you were a professional boxer and your second was a buxom 19-year-old blonde in hot pants.

That's what undefeated welterweight Tommy Von Hatten has going for him.

His wife, Pam, is there the instant the round ends to mop his brow and apply a word of encouragement or advice.

Von Hatten has won 11 bouts the latest a knockout over Ernest Cokes, the younger brother of former world welterweight champion Curtis Cokes. At the end of each bout Pam smothers him with kisses. The crowd loves it.

Von Hatten said, "To tell you the truth, it was just something she wanted to do and I was glad to have her up there, but all that's changed.

"She's really picking up on a lot of things," he added. "I've stressed to her the importance of doing a good job, because in the corner, you've only got a minute and you've got to do it fast and do it right.

"Now she can pick out things I'm doing wrong that my trainer or manager Doug Lord don't see."

Von Hatten smiled, "It's surprising. I figured she was just another dumb blonde."

You've got two chances to get your money's worth whenever Von Hatten fights. Even if he has an off night, you can always watch his corner.

Nets Surprise Team in Playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Nets have become the surprise team in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Led by Johnny Roche and Johnny Beaum they rose to unbelievable heights in again upsetting the Kentucky Colonels 100-92 Friday night to take a commanding 3-1 lead over the East Division champions in their best-of-seven series.

And the underdog Nets did it without their high scoring Rick Barry who came down with the flu before the game.

In the other ABA playoff scheduled the Utah Stars swept the Dallas Chaps in four straight, 103-99, and advanced to the final of the West Division.

The Boston Celtics took a 3-2 lead over Atlanta by beating the Hawks 124-114 in their Eastern Conference semifinals in the National Basketball Association. It was the only playoff game scheduled in the NBA.

Roche and Baum combined for 63 points in leading the Nets to their surprise triumph before a record 14,896 at the new Nassau Coliseum on Long Island.

Roche threw in 38 points, 17 of them in the last quarter. He tallied the last eight points for the Nets to break a 92-92 tie.

As for Baum, who started in place of Barry, he canned 25 points, including 15 in the third quarter that kept the Nets close to the Colonels who led 73-71 starting the last period.

Dan Issel scored 27 points to lead the Colonels who had been warned by coach Joe Mullaney "not to let down because of Barry."

Henry Finkel, former Dayton star, came off the bench and threw in some crucial baskets from long range that kept the Celtics ahead of Atlanta at the Boston Garden. His shots thwarted an Atlanta rally.

As Richie Guerin, Atlanta coach, put it: "When they took Dave Cowens out with five fouls they were just two points up. We had everything going for us, but then Finkel made those crucial baskets from outside and that really hurt us."

John Havlicek was high for Boston with 27. Walt Bellamy, Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson each got 21 for the Hawks.

Ron Boone led Utah with 21 points against the Dallas Chaps who were sparked by Donnie Freeman's 30 points.

In the West Division ABA final Utah will meet the winner of the Indiana-Denver series that now stands at 2-2.

If the Nets again beat Kentucky in an afternoon game today they will meet the Virginia Squires in the ABA East Division final.

Denver plays at Indiana tonight. There are no NBA playoffs scheduled today.

Trinity University in San Antonio, Tex., has opened its 43rd major academic building.

Catch-up Time in National Hockey

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Except for the Toronto Maple Leafs, it's catch-up time tonight as the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs change sites.

While the St. Louis Blues, Montreal Canadiens and Pittsburgh Penguins all go into their third quarter-final games at home—each still without a victory—the Leafs have a golden opportunity to get the jump on the powerful Boston Bruins.

"Everybody said we were going to get laced, that we were going to get beat four games to nothing—but I guess we showed 'em," said King Clancy, who has coached the Leafs since John McClellan was sidelined by a stomach ailment in the latter part of the season.

After the Bruins shellacked Toronto 5-0 in the first of two games in Boston, the Leafs responded with a 4-3 sudden-death victory on Jim Harrison's goal 2½ minutes into overtime.

And with the next two games in Toronto, the Leafs have a chance to take a commanding lead in the best-of-seven series against the high-scoring Bruins, the regular-season East Division champs. Toronto just did squeeze into the fourth and final playoff berth.

In the other East Division series, the Canadiens, the defending Stanley Cup champions, winless in their two playoff games in New York, face the prospect of having to face a high-spirited bunch of Rangers who went undefeated during the season in the Montreal Forum.

In the first two games, the final period made the difference with the Rangers—playing tenacious defense and gambling with success on offense—pulling out 3-2 and 5-2 victories.

In the West, meanwhile, the Penguins having absorbed 3-1 and 3-2 losses in Chicago, face a squad of Black Hawks—the divisional champs—already aroused by $1,000 in fines levied against them by NHL President Clarence Campbell for Dennis Hull's alleged use of an illegally curved stick.

And the Blues, returning home after suffering 3-0 and 6-5 setbacks in Minnesota, the latter in overtime when Bill Goldsworthy rammed in a rebound after just 1:36 of sudden-death play, will try to get back in contention with the first of their two home games against the North Stars.

All four quarter-finals resume Sunday with the fourth games. The North Stars-Blues clash will be nationally televised.

HIGHER FENCES

PHILADELPHIA (AP)

The outfield fences at Veterans' Stadium will be increased from eight to 12 feet. Too many balls were bouncing over the fences for ground rule doubles. But the Phillies will have to wait until next year because no parks may be changed during the baseball season.

AS THE NBA PLAYOFFS grind on toward the nitty-gritty, the spotlight is falling on these four key players, from left, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks, Wilt Chamberlain of the Los Angeles Lakers, Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks and John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics.

The Unsecret Life of Dr. Meriwether

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Imagine: September 5, 1972. The Olympic Stadium in Munich is hushed. Two hundred thousands pairs of eyeballs rivet on a tall thin man limping dramatically to the 100-meter track. On the way, he removes a long white doctor's coat and hands it to a nurse who looks like Virginia Mayo. "Dr. Mittywether," she says, softly, her beautiful orbs drippy, "may I help you with your leg, too?"

"No," he snaps, "I can make it alone."

Now Dr. Mittywether lines up with Borzov the Russian and Greene the American and the world record holder from Jamaica and the ex-record holder from Madagascar and the great champion from Sverdrup who loosens up by flappping his wings.

The courageous doctor waits tensely, feeling the throbbing ache in his right knee, the knee all the world knows he injured in a fall six months ago. The gun blasts. Dr. Mittywether hops off on his good leg. He wins! He sets a world record. He . . .

"No," said Dr. Delano Meriwether over breakfast recently. "It's not all that important. I like to clown around at track. Sure, I'd love to be in the Olympics. If I'm not—I won't brood."

And with that, the 28-year-old hematologist destroyed the dreams that the rest of us Walter Mittys have had about the one armchair brother who stood up one day, walked right into that television set, onto a track and became a national sprint champion.

It's just fun for him, not romantic life-or-death the way most Monday morning quarterbacks would have it. Is he upset by the knee he bruised recently in an AAU meet? No, it's still in walking order.

"I may be a physician," said Dr. Meriwether, "but I am somewhat unsophisticated about some things. I don't even know who Walter Mitty was."

The hen-pecked Mitty, created in a short story by James Thurber, only dreamed of being such things as a great sea captain in a storm ("The Old Man'll get us through! He ain't afraid of Hell!") and a brilliant doctor (only Dr. Mitty could perform surgery for obstreosis of the ductal tract).

Meanwhile, back at the lab, Meriwether is actually doing important research on sickle cell anemia, the disorder of the blood-protein hemoglobin.

But he is also the current national outdoor and indoor sprint champ and was in New York recently to receive the annual Tanqueray Sports Achievement Award.

Meriwether began running competitively last year, at an age when most track stars have traded in their spikes for slippers. The story of his beginning is by now a twice-told legend.

One afternoon he was home watching a U.S.-European track meet on television.

"Hey, I think I can beat those guys," he said to his wife, Myrtle.

"Of course, dear," she said, soothingly.

He had already been running in near record time in local meets in Baltimore. Yet he had never competed in high school (no track team) and didn't have time at Michigan State; he went through the heavy pre-med program in three years, and then became the first black student at the Duke University Medical School.

His track training was sporadic because of long lab hours. A couple evenings a week he'd run at night in an unlit park. Other times, his workout would consist of running up the seven flights of stairs of his apartment house (sometimes backward).

Meriwether emerged into the track world like something out of an animated cartoon, wearing tight gold swimming trunks, a white V-neck hospital shirt and striped suspenders. ("Track should be entertaining," he said). His running style was compared to a man thrashing about as though "beset by a swarm of enraged hornets." But he raced, and he won.

His recent win in the AAU championship appears costly, however. He collided with another runner after hitting the tape in the 100-yard dash in Madison Square Garden. He has since missed two meets because the swollen knee hobbles him.

"If it doesn't heal properly, well—I've had fun," he says. "And that's all I'm concerned with. I've always liked to run. Track is my bag, like bowling or golf is someone else's. I don't want to compete. Just clown around and get some pleasurable exercise."

The knee injury is not his first track ailment. He suffered three torn muscles in his left leg last season, and still won several meets. So, though his mustachioed upper lip may be curved in amusement it is still stiff.

"Then," wrote Thurber, "with that faint, fleeting smile playing about his lips, he faced the firing squad erect and motionless, proud and disdainful, Walter Mitty the Undefeated, inscrutable to the last."

Masters' Champ Life Not All Gold, Glory

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The life of a Masters champion is not all gold and glory—it can be disappointment and disillusionment, Charles Coody said today as he reflected on his 12 months as possessor of the coveted green jacket.

"It seems I've done nothing but try to prove that it wasn't an accident—a giant mistake," the tall, good-looking Texan said after finishing preparation for defense of his title over the Augusta National course, starting Thursday.

"I didn't expect everybody to jump on my bandwagon after I won. Neither did I expect them to say, 'How the Hell did this happen?' "

The green coat with the flagstick insignia on the pocket comes up for grabs again this week with 86 of the world's top players—72 professionals and 14 amateurs—competing over 72 holes Thursday through Sunday.

The windup of the final two rounds will be shown on national television by CBS.

Coody would like to become the second repeat winner in the 38-year history—Jack Nicklaus won in 1965-66—but, if he isn't, he warns that the new champion should not expect too much.

"The report that the Masters can be worth a million dollars in extra money to the winner is greatly exaggerated," Coody said. "Maybe in the case of a Nicklaus, a Palmer or a Trevino. But in my case, no."

The 6-feet-2, 185-pound native of Abilene, Tex., owner of a spotty nine-year pro career, makes no attempt to hide the fact that he has never been fully recognized as a true champion.

"Maybe it's because my hair is cut short, my dress is drab or because I don't drink or smoke," he lamented while a steak sandwich grew cold in the Augusta locker room. "For some reason, I don't turn people on."

With the teeoff in the 36th Masters a day away, Coody continues to find himself a lonely, almost forgotten champion—overshadowed by the so-called glamour boys of the game.

Nicklaus, thinner, more golden in looks and riches, already winner of more than $100,000 this year, is the strong advance favorite at unofficial odds of 6-1.

Arnold Palmer, the charger, the pants-tugger, a four-time winner and still a potent force at age 42, is "back on his stick," as the boys say. Lee Trevino, the garrulous Mexican-American who was 1971 player of the year after sweeping the U.S., Canadian and British Open titles, has ended his two-year boycott of the Masters but not his outspoken flair for controversy.

Then there are Bill Casper, Gary Player, the South African with the physical fitness fetish, Lu Liang-Huan of Taiwan, who was runner-up in the British Open, and long-hitting Masashi Ozaki of Japan, the six-foot former baseball player making his masters debut, plus a host of young blond-haired tigers such as Larry Hinson and John Miller.

All are being given greater pre-tournament attention than Coody—to no surprise to the defending champion himself.

Foster Fears Being Cheated

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Bob Foster worries about being cheated.

"If the fight's close and goes the full 15 rounds," said the veteran light heavyweight, "I'm not sure I can get a fair break in a decision because it's clear I'm not the WBA's man."

Foster, stripped of the World Boxing Association light heavyweight title last year, attempts to regain it tonight against Venezuelan farmboy Vicente Rondon at Miami Beach Convention Hall.

"All I've got is my brain, my ability and my two hands," said Foster, shaking his head. "So, I plan to knock him out by the fifth round so there'll be no doubt and no worry about judges or the referee."

The 175-pounders will settle what has been a two-headed division since Foster's crown was grabbed by the WBA and eventually placed upon the head of the tough inside battler from Caracas.

Dick Green: Last of the Satisfied Ballplayers?

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MESA, Ariz. (NEA) — Dick Green already makes what Charlie Finley wanted to pay Vida Blue this year — a cool $50,000, by Dick's own admission.

Dick wears No. 1 on the green-and-gold uniforms in which Charlie dresses his minions. He is the senior member in terms of service for the powerful Oakland Athletics.

Green is not a star in the Vida Blue class. He is just a nondescript second baseman with a lifetime batting average of .239, who never batted over .300 even in the minors. And yet he has held down a regular job for eight years.

He is 30 years old and will be 31 in July and every year he has made like Satchel Paige and gradually announced he'll retire. And every year he has come back for crabgrass.

Maybe it's because the A's have been in the money a heap, what with 307 games in 1964 for Kansas City and a berth in the American League Western Division champs of 1971 with 101 wins. And Richard Larry Green, whose major league career began with that '64 team, has been through it all. Charlie Finley bought the club two months after Dick joined it.

"I'm lucky, the caliber ballplayer I am, to get my eight or nine years in," he said. "It's very hard for everyone. I've got to concentrate so much. And I don't have the confidence. In the early days, when we were always getting beaten, I was just happy to get my time in. But today the game at second base was my easiest. We're winning."

The A's have built their [illegible] with people [illegible] Bando at third, Campaneris at short, Blue, Cash at first, Reggie Jackson in right and Gene Tenace in the outfield. Duncan and Green behind the plate, Vida Blue, Catfish Hunter, Ken Holtzman, Mudcat Grant, Blue Moon Odom and Chuck Dobson on the mound. And they have never played for any other major league team.

Dick Green

Somewhere credit has to be given to Green's boss, Charles Oscar Finley.

"I think Mr. Finley is a real good salesman," said Dick, lifting himself off the training table recessed in the pile of lumber and corrugated iron the A's call Rendezvous Park (their spring home). "I think he's been right all along in his approach to baseball. The man has his fingers on everything. He knows the game needs some help."

Charlie let the full force of his personality loose on Green last fall when Dick flew into Chicago (Finley's business headquarters) to tell him he was quitting. Charlie, it's rumored, lent Dick the money to build a new house in Rapid City, S.D., where some day he'll retire to run his moving van agency. And he put him in Vida Blue's class, salary-wise.

"I'm a satisfied ballplayer," Dick said now. "I must be old-fashioned. I thought Vida Blue should do his own negotiating with Mr. Finley."

Dick used to be the captain of the team, but when his average dipped below .200 a couple of seasons, the job was taken from him. And Dick understood it. The pressure of performing nags him.

"This is the enjoyable part," he said, his face tan from the Arizona sun, his brown hair bleached at the edges. "There's no pressure. You travel with your wife and children to a warm part of the country and eat out at nice restaurants every night. During the season it's different. You're on the road. And the pressure. Vida Blue felt it the last part of the season. That's why he didn't win as much. Reggie Jackson felt it a couple of years before."

It makes a man, Dick implied, grow old before his time.

"I look around and see guys playing when they're 33 and 34," he said, "and I don't know how they do it. Henry Aaron is 38. How does a guy play to the age of 38?"

He shook his head, grabbed his glove and went out to infield practice.
